Tracy Selis has spent over two decades specializing in the defense of insurance companies and their insureds, as well as advocating for individuals and businesses involved in civil and commercial litigation. She has handled insurance matters covering a wide range of topics, including general commercial liability issues, personal injury defense, negligence and other tort claims, subrogation defense and recoveries and fire and casualty defense. Beyond insurance, she routinely is involved with divorce and separation agreements and litigation, business disputes and contractual disagreements. Her clients have come to rely on her impeccable legal advice and commitment to great results to navigate litigation matters in a cost-effective manner.
